

STONEHENGE ALLIANCE CAMPAIGN UPDATE

The British Museum's World of Stonehenge Exhibition failed to display this message.

Stonehenge Alliance campaigners brought the message to Museum visitors on 14 July.

Thank you for coming!

Thank you for making waves! Andy Brockman, who covers heritage and archaeology for The Pipeline News, shared his photos and tweeted the experience: "Very polite & politely monitored by BM Security who allowed things to proceed without drama. Point made: We've seen a wonderful exhibition about the World of Stonehenge past. But what future?"

Not only was the landmark World of Stonehenge stunningly silent about plans for a massive road scheme that threatens the very status of the World Heritage Site, but it made not a single reference to the recent Mesolithic finds at Blick Mead. It's as if they hadn't been discovered. Why? One reader of the Heritage Journal considers it the elephant in the exhibition. So, that makes TWO elephants! Read her comments here.

It was wonderful to meet so many supporters who made a stand both inside and outside the British Museum.

Yet another round of consultation

As we mentioned recently the Secretary of State for Transport invited National Highways (NH) to reply to specific issues raised by Interested Parties (including Stonehenge Alliance) last April.

NH's replies have now been published. If you are on the Planning Inspectorate's mailing list you will have seen the call to Interested Parties to comment on those responses by 3 August.

Some of you have sought our advice about how to respond. We suggest that supporters may wish not to respond just yet. We realise the time scale is tight and Covid is a recurring problem, but we need the benefit of specialist advice.

We'll be in touch as soon as we can.

Meanwhile ...

We commend our 'Redetermination Catch Up'

The reasons for refusing the resubmitted DCO are explained in detail in our specialists' responses on various aspects from legal arguments about the status of this process to groundwater disruptions at Blick Mead. It's papers like these that are at the heart of our campaign. Read our blog here.
